Comic Revolution in Catamarca.

Fall of Moses O'Mill (off a wall.)

The downfall of Virasoro and revolt of San Juan have been reproduced in Catamarca, without, however, the accompanying horrors of the former. Gov O'Mill has been dethroned, but not butchered. Sr. Correa comes, like Aberastain to fill the vacant chair, but no visions of an impending Pozitos will disturb his official slumbers. The "model" revolution of August 17th is a splendid proof of moderation on all sides, and demonstrates practically how six men can at half an hour's notice upset any provincial Governor however shrewd in the cabinet or doughty in the field, and work a total reform without even exchanging a black eye, or being at all uncivil to their opponents.

It appears General Rojo had not yet arrived on his mediatory mission to prevent the terrible shock of the paladins of Tucuman with Santiago highlanders, when citizen Daniel Palacios, whose heart burned with the love of Liberty, armed himself with two rusty pistols and a sword-cane, rallying forth to free his land from bondage. It was half past twelve and the night exceedingly dark, when our hero fell in with 23 in dividuals all out for a lark—turned towards the barrack which was supposed to contain 40 men including colonels, captains &c. The sentinel may have been at dominoes or asleep; certain it is that the sight of a regulation cut off pick was enough to frighten him. Corporal Rodriguez cried out, like Cambronne, "the guard never surrenders," which obliged the midnight reformers to discharge a gun at him, as a reward for fidelity and bravery. Some of the sergeants being accomplices, there was no resistance in the barracks, and one of the leaders was loudly applauded when he proved the Moses of O'Mill, as a misnomer since he enslaved, instead of liberating his people, and that Daniel (Palacios) was going to write something on the wall of the tyrant's house.

The crusaders next knocked at the Governor's door, adding that he was wanted outside in the barrack. Moses replied that he would go presently. Then they told him to "look alive," with a view to allow attempted to kill him, by firing through the half-door, fancying he was behind the key hole. Some shots now were exchanged, and the door was at length broken open. The bird was gone, for Gov O'Mill had already fallen in crossing the boundary-wall of his neighbour's house. He escaped with a pair of trousers in one hand and his boots in another. The conformists mounting sentinel his papers, and having secured his writing-desk, went away. The Commander of arms, Carmen Gigena, hearing the row, ran out of a billiard room, with a cue in his hand, and taking the liberators for some drunken soldiers, told them to go home; but when he learned of the pronunciamiento, he snatched his hands to be tied behind his back.

So ended the affair, for no one took the trouble to pugnar O'Mill, who coolly left the town next day At 1 a.m., some wag rang the alarm-bell, when all were over, and 400 shivering citizens rushed out of doors in their night-clothes, presenting a picture very different from popular enthusiasm. On the following days several of the rising generation began to shout in the plaza, and the formation of a new Government was resolved upon.

The Chambers declared Sr. Correa lawful Governor, but he could not be found, not having been seen for some time back: Don Pedro Cano was elected as locum-tenens, it being supposed that Correa is still hiding in the woods, since his defeat at Chilion. Our "constitutional" friends will probably explain the "model" revolution as a triumph of order. We should, however, have wished to see the matter settled by the delegate of Congress, who is en route for Catamarca. The Argentine Confederation is indeed reduced to political mendicity, if it must rely, for support, on such midnight reformers as Dn Daniel Palacios and his chums! "Nec tali auxilio, nec defensoribus istis.

Editor's table.

The political position of Buenos Ayres, this moment, is anything but pleasant. First, we have the Minister of Government's resignation, then the Minister of Finance, and now, some people say, the Governor himself: this last news, of course, we don't credit; but still it was freely circulated through town yesterday. Ounces are going up fast to 500, and the plain fact of the matter is that these political dissensions are robbing every one, and destroying the country. We don't think the efforts of Government to bring ounces down, and also that of the opposition to drive them up. This Opposition seems to have succeeded for the moment, and as they consider the principal losers by this sudden rise in specie, will be the "cachetros," they rejoice in their triumph. We cannot certainly see our way out of the maze, in the recent changes of Ministry.

The gas escape in Calle Maypú, between Calles Piedad and Cangallo, has pitched the street into awful confusion; the street had to be cut open, and some young men, fancying the cause jumped at the conclusion that the "cachetros" were constructing barricades.

The French work is going on undisturbed at the Solis; a rumour spilt has taken place in the Italian company. The last performance which had been advertised never took place, and the money had to be returned to the people, to allay the tumult.

In Santa Fe, a frightful murder had been committed by three gauchos. The unfortunate victim was entering his kitchen, and having the fellows to take a meal, when they stabbed him from behind, and almost finished two of the peons also.

We have received news from Chile up to the 1st August. The English mail-steamer 'Lima' was to be backed, her voyage from Panamá to Valparaiso, on the 10th July. Passengers and crew saved, but the cargo all lost. For want of space we must hold over full particulars until to-morrow.

The American Muchin has received a letter from his brother, who is in London, in which he states that a Rambouillet ram, which had been exhibited at the Great Exhibition in London, has been sold for 400*l.* sterling.

The new collector has not yet been named, but we doubt much if General Mitre would do better than select some of "Nemo's" candidates

Mew measures.

The miserable pabulum state of Buenos Ayres, at present, forbids the hope that any suggestion of important nature, of a financial nature, will be, for a moment, attended to. To judge the country by the number of its legislators, and the length of their speeches, one would think that we lived in a Rambouillet ram, which had been exhibited at the Great Exhibition in London, has been sold for 400*l.* sterling.

The new collector has not yet been named, but we doubt much if General Mitre would do better than select some of "Nemo's" candidates

Mew measures.

The miserable pabulum state of Buenos Ayres, at present, forbids the hope that any suggestion of important nature, of a financial nature, will be, for a moment, attended to. To judge the country by the number of its legislators, and the length of their speeches, one would think that we lived in a country, not only where no important measure was ever proposed, but where no measure could be carried into effect. The mildest demagogue amongst us is lashed into silence by a seat in a public office: but, as the applicants are so numerous, that in every town and, not only the whole province should be turned into the Capital, but the whole Argentine Republic into a seat government, we need scarcely follow that some of the greedy aspirants are left without office: these individuals keep up a constant Hull-ballon outside, which can be only compared to the spreading of a litter of pigs, and which keeps politics in Buenos Ayres at variance every day night. We have now to call the attention of the Government to a truly important subject, but as we perceive all the beneficial measures which the Government have lately brought in, for the permanence of peace and the advancement of the country, meet with a melancholy fate, we have little hope that it will meet with any success.

Buenos Ayres has a southern port called Bahia Blanca, which, if only little attended to, would grow into a most important place. It possesses many natural advantages, and we have no doubt, from what we learn, is yet destined to be the grand emporium of the cereals for the Argentine republic. As at present situated, it will never come to any importance, for nobody knows anything about the place. We not be regarded as otherwise than a very satisfactory return for all Association of this nature.

Share Ledger Account A $198,940

represents the aggregate value of the 2990 shares of the original issue of 1861 including purchase money, monthly subscriptions and interest to the date of the Balance sheet. The value of each of these shares is thus shown to be $ 666.

Share Ledger Account B—shows the aggregate value of the 8 shares issued on the 1st March, to be $ 9,920 inclusive of the present dividend of 15 $ a share. The value of each of these B shares was $ 365 on the date of the Balance sheet.

Charges Account—The sum of 6548 to the debit of this account is the balance of the honry preliminary expenses for books, printing &c., which has not yet been gradually paid off by the fees on the issue and transfer of shares. This item has been reduced by the sum of 493 $ received for the issue and transfer of shares on the 1st instant since closing the books.

Members Loan Account.—This is the amount of various sums temporarily advanced to shareholders on the security of their deposits. It has been the practice of your Committee to charge it at rest on these loans at the current rate of the other securities held by the Association, and considering the nature of the security it is trusted that this proceeding will meet with the approbation of the shareholders.

After the General Meeting of June 6th, 12 shares were bought in by the Committee from retiring members and 223 new shares were allotted. At the date of the balance sheet the subscribers were 48 in number, holding 2990 shares, being an increase of ten shares during the quarter. On the 1st September, after closing the books, 50 shares were withdrawn and 89 new shares allotted.

The present number of subscribers is 52.

The total number of shares in circulation is 3337.

In fulfilment of this engagement made at the termination of the first half year after the foundation of the Association, your committee have prepared a revised set of Rules and Regulat ons which they trust are submitting for your approval in the course of the evening. Copies of these Rules have been placed on the Library Table during the last month, so that you have had opportunities of remarking that they contain several very important amendments as well as numerous and no less important additions to the present Rules. A general management of the affairs of the Association has convinced your Committee of the necessity of these changes, which they recommend to your most careful consideration, and they have also sure in adding that a well digested code of Rules is alone wanting to give stability to this Association. Already such a footing as to leave little doubt of its permanence and success.

Before resigning the important charge with which you have entrusted them, your committee beg to offer their thanks for the cordial support you have afforded them in seconding their efforts to further the objects of the Association as well as for the confidence you have manifested in their management of your interests.

The thanks of the Association are due to the Committee of the Library, through whose courtesy the commodious apartments in which the General Meetings are held, are placed gratuitously at the service of the Association, and the Treasurer is also allowed the use of a room for the purpose of receiving the monthly subscription. Your Committee feel that this is a legitimate occupation of the apartments of the Library, to which a majority of the shareholders are subscribers, and they would appeal to such of them as are not so to feel that the payment of the small sum which they regret to see lengthening for want of subscribers.

The Editors of the "Standard" have uniformly shown themselves interested in the welfare of the British Clerk's Provident Association, and have acted to the benefit of the shareholders for the gratuitous insertion of advertisements and for their general support of the Association.

Your Committee conclude the first Annual Report by expressing a fervent hope that the same unanimity amongst the British Clerks which has enabled them to establish, will be continued in support of this useful Association, which is destined to exercise a beneficial influence over their future lives, by encouraging that spirit of economy, which is the great cause of every petty and the foundation of an honourable independence.

The Report was received with applause on the part of the shareholders present, and was adopted unanimously on the motion of Mr. Kinch, seconded by Mr. Milroy. The elections for the Directors for the ensuing year were per ceeded with by ballot, and the following Gentlemen were elected to serve,

President.
Mr. F. W. H. Wells.

Committee.
- " F. W. Moore
- " M. Milroy
- " M. Forrester
- " A. Auchterlonie
- " and Mr. Stansfield
- " H. Grigg

Auditors.
- " A. M. Bell
- " A. Williamson,

Messrs Glover, Salmond, Marcus and Kinch were elected to serve as substitutes or the Committee, and Messrs Carroll and Cowan as substitutes for the Auditors.

The President called the attention of the Meeting to the services of the Library committee, who had placed their commodious apartments at the disposal of the Association for the transaction of its business, and on the motion of Mr. Kinch so ended by Dr. Grigg a vote of thanks to the British Library was passed unanimously. The President next noticed the conduct of the Editors of the "Standard" and suggested that they should also be thanked not only for the gratuitous insertion of advertisements, but especially for their flattering editorial remarks and the interest they have taken in the Association generally.

Mr. Darbyshire proposed and Mr. le Rossignol seconded a vote of thanks to the Editors of the "Standard" which was carried by acclamation.

The President then declared the ordinary business of this meeting to be terminated, and regretted that in consequence of the small attendance of shareholders it would be necessary to postpone the motion of the Rules and Regulations, which require a unanimity of two thirds of the entire number of votes to be confirmed. The number of votes represented at the meeting was found to be exactly two thirds but as one shareholder found that not an end to the proceedings, the President recommended the adjournment of the General General Meeting until the 1st instant at the Library at half past seven o'clock which on the motion of Mr. B Rossignol seconded by Mr. Burns was unanimously carried.

After some comments on the absence of about one third of the shareholders which although it might be interpreted as a mark of their confidence in the executive was very discouraging to the gentlemen of the committee who had taken such pains in preparing a new set of Rules and had so frequently requested the attendance of the whole body of the shareholders, the meeting adjourned.

In accordance with the previous motion, Messrs Stansfield and Chisholm jointly proposed a vote of thanks to the retiring committee, and the proceedings terminated with a special vote of thanks to the President, proposed in a few appropriate remarks by Mr Edward Darbyshire.

Petition of the Foreign Merchants.

Buenos Aires 3d September 1862

To the national Congress.

The undersigned Merchants of this city of Buenos Aires appear before you with all respect presenting the following petition.

It is well known that the commerce of this city is intimately connected with that of the interior provinces, that they owe us large sums and that the last disturbances of the country have been an insuperable obstacle to the recovery of said sums.

The commerce of the interior has been embarrassed by the late war and the only capital which they possess consists in bills of debt of the National Government; there are first those which are injurious to commerce being no much capital completely useless because they bear no market value even for the guarantee of debts.

The commerce of Buenos Aires, which has supported with valour and confidence the glorious revolution which has liberated the nation, has not vacilated in sacrificing particularly interests, confiding that an era of peace and good government would enable it to make up for the losses of a year of inaction which it occasioned.

It trusted with confidence that the government and Congress, reestablishing the trade of the interior, with just and opportune measures, would alleviate the commerce of this city whose creditors in all parts of the republic have heretofore been impeded from paying, on account of the shortness of national reasons.

This, the ultimate of the floating debt of the nation not taking into account its political convenience on the consolidation of the national rule, is for the commerce of Buenos Aires a question of life or death; because as if there be a very small part of that commerce unconnected with it, there are also a great many large houses which would suffer enormously in their interest from the moment that it be known that Congress is hostile to such an arrangement or that it shall decide to postpone it for the following year.

The undersigned confiding in the judgment and rectitude of V. E. and that a question of such vital importance, not only for the nation but more particularly for the commerce of this city, will merit a favourable decision, we request you to take in to consideration the justice of our case and saving this commerce from a situation which is fast becoming insupportable and ruinances with utter ruin a large part of the commerce of Buenos Aires.
